About The National Association of Women in Construction (NAWIC) San Diego

NAWIC provides its members with opportunities for professional development, education, networking, leadership training, public service and more. The San Diego Chapter, chartered on April 30, 1959, is very active and involved in the construction industry and the community. Each year the chapter participates in a variety of events including educational seminars and conferences, Women in Construction Week (WIC Week), Block Kids (construction awareness program for children in grades 1 thru 6), CAD/Design/Drafting Contest (High School student activity), Camp NAWIC (a week long program designed to mentor high school girls planning to enter the construction industry), college scholarships, joint meetings with other San Diego professional organizations and various activities with local charities. The past two years marked the beginning of the NAWIC SD Future Construction Leaders Foundation, a 501(c)(3) that gives us the ability to receive charitable contributions and apply for grants for our educational programs. Our annual Golf Tournament raises funds for the foundation as well as making a donation to Rady Children's Hospital. With last year's event we've reached an accumulated total over the past 5 years of $50,000 for Rady Children's with an equal amount going to our own NAWIC programs!
